

A post office, an interurban stop, and then a junction. Raleigh Hills sits where Beaverton-Hillsdale Highway meets Scholls Ferry Road, and it is the commercial centre for a large piece of unincorporated Washington County — the first New Seasons opened here. Like West Slope, it has no city government, and the county is currently drawing a town centre boundary around it.

The figure is Zillow's modelled index for the Raleigh Hills area, not a median of closed sales — the two are different measures and should never be compared directly. Redfin's local median rests on eight sales in a month. For a closed-sale benchmark with volume, ZIP 97225 ran $719,689 in August 2026 across 93 sales.

THE JUNCTION · BEAVERTON-HILLSDALE HIGHWAY AT SCHOLLS FERRY ROAD

HOW IT CAME TO BE HERE

A post office called Raleigh opened in April 1892, named for a resident, Raleigh Robinson, and closed twelve years later. In 1914 Southern Pacific's Red Electric interurban established a stop here, which is what first made the junction worth building around; the line ran until 1929.

Water came the way most things did here — by the neighbours. In 1921 they formed Raleigh Water Users, funded by property-owner shares rather than taxes, and in 1947 it became a state-law water district with an elected board. Washington County adopted the community plan that still governs the area on 12 September 1978.

WHAT TO CHECK BEFORE YOU BUY HERE

- Confirm the lot is still unincorporated. Two subareas of the plan have already been annexed to Beaverton and one parcel to Portland. Jurisdiction sets the permit counter, the police provider and the tax stack.
- Identify the water district by name. Four separately elected districts serve this one plan area — Metzger, Raleigh, West Slope and Tualatin Valley — with different rates. Raleigh buys Bull Run water wholesale from Portland.
- Septic or sewer. Order a county Existing System Evaluation for anything on septic. A failure, or redevelopment within 300 feet of a sewer line, forces connection.
- The town centre designation in progress. The county's 2025–27 work programme includes adopting a Raleigh Hills town centre boundary. Those designations typically change allowed density and parking rules. Ask where the draft line falls.

THE HOUSING

Predominantly low-density detached houses — R-5 covers just under 69 percent of plan-area acreage, at four to five units an acre on a 5,500 square foot minimum lot. Smaller shares carry R-9, R-15 and R-24 designations, and roughly 75 acres are community business district around the junction itself.

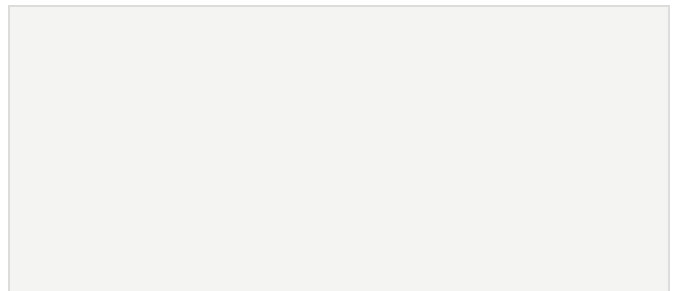

The county describes the area as largely developed with relatively few vacant parcels remaining. Census five-year estimates for 2020–2024 put owner occupancy at 52.8 percent and the median value of owner-occupied units at $913,700 — again a self-reported value averaged over five years, not a closing price.

GETTING AROUND

The junction is the point: Oregon 10 and Oregon 210 meet here, and Oregon 10 runs continuously through Hillsdale to Capitol Highway, Barbur and downtown. Highway 217 is west and US 26 north. The county counts almost a dozen bus lines through the plan area.

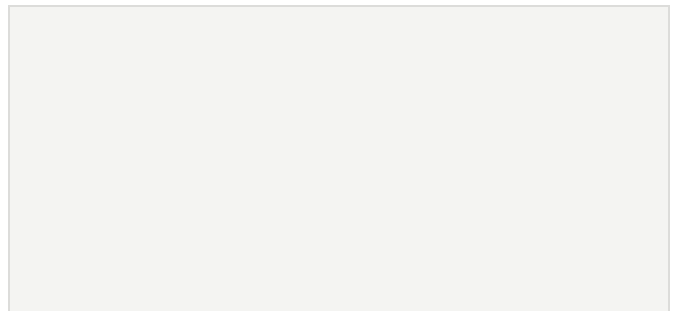

Beaverton-Hillsdale is a designated frequent bus route; Canyon, Garden Home and Oleson are regional routes. Line 54's published weekday schedule runs about 24 to 25 minutes from Beaverton-Hillsdale and Oleson to downtown. Bikeways are sparse — essentially Scholls Ferry south of Raleigh Scholls Park and part of Garden Home Road.

PARKS AND DAILY LIFE

The retail node is the draw. New Seasons Market at 7300 SW Beaverton Hillsdale is the chain's original store, with Fred Meyer a few hundred yards east at 7700. The park district runs Raleigh Scholls Park, Vista Brook Park, and Raleigh Park with its seasonal swim centre.

Fanno Creek and its floodplain cross the plan area, and the abandoned Red Electric right-of-way between SW 92nd and Oleson survives as a bridle path. Two libraries serve the area — West Slope on SW 78th and Garden Home, which joined the county co-operative in July 1996 and expanded in spring 2019.
